

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a process for the production of pre-stressed and/or bent glass elements. In order to avoid an edge processing with subsequent washing, the process according to the invention is carried out as follows: a crude glass plate is produced; the glass plate is cut to the desired size; the cutting-to-size is done by means of a laser; and after the cutting-to-size the glass plate is pre-stressed and/or bent.